From The President

Good evening FCRV camping family. It is April 4 and as I write this it is with great sadness at the loss of a friend. I have just returned home to Colorado from Canada saying farewell to Lorne Douglas, someone I regarded a dear friend. As you know Lorne was our Vice President of Programs. It was an honor to represent you, his FCRV Family at the funeral. To Mabel and the family, we will always be there for you and our prayers go out for you. Lorne will be missed on the Board of Trustees. Lorne enjoy the great campfire in heaven. Your passing is our loss and heavens gain.

It is important that I announce that the Trustees have appointed Dora Lewis to fill the remaining term of VP Programs. As you know Dora is the VP of Programs Elect and will be installed in Pueblo in July to the position for her term. I would like to welcome Dora to the Board. Dora thank you for your willingness to serve.

Another announcement that I have the privilege to make is Beth Coniglio to the position of National Teen Director. Beth welcome on board and thank you for your service. Beth hits the ground running and I have task her with a very large project out of the gate. Thank you Beth I know this is in good hands.

The Trustees are fast approaching the annual budget meeting so if there are any request that need to be considered they need to be sent in very soon. Campvention is now only 3 months away! This is so hard to believe but time is flying by. July will be here and gone in the blink of an eye. I am looking forward to seeing each of you in Colorado for Campvention. This will be a fun filled Campvention with more to do than time so be prepared to have to choose what you will be attending.

For many of us the camping season is now under way! This weekend I will be out on my second campout for the year. It is good to be camping again. So having said this let's remember to submit out outing the ones we are planning and the ones we have had to the website for publication on the National Facebook page to increase the footprint on the web. It is important that we post on the national page a day or so in advance of on the Private page to get the word out on the activities that FCRV does. If we post on the private page first only the people in FCRV will see it. This is over all not a problem but, we are trying to promote FCRV to younger families and if our information on Camping and outing is only able to be seen by our members, they the family that is looking for camping information will never see it. If they never see that FCRV is active, camping, and doing thing that they have a shared interest we never get them to consider FCRV. If they don't see us, the simple fact is we don't grow. What I am asking is that if you are getting ready to post something to Facebook, please post it to the National Page first and then post it to the private page. Both are important! We lost a big jump with all the Retiree Rally post going to the private page with little to nothing going to that National Page. This was a huge loss for FCRV.

In closing let me remind you the Life members that you will be receiving a letter with a post card that we would request you return as soon as possible. This will update you in the system and keep you informed. If you have not received your letter and post card you possibly do not have the correct address on file with the office. I would encourage you to contact the office be phone, email, or letter with the correct contact information in advance of the end of April.

Well, I must get this off to Camping Today as it is late as it is! Happy Camping and we will see you around a campfire soon

Gerry Pfirsch

FCRV Health Guidelines

Hey Happy Campers! (And you Grumpy Campers, too!)

Your Trustees have been very busy this winter and I wanted to share some important news with you.

Last May, Camping Today, published some information for you regarding COVID and how FCRV wanted to handle all the differing viewpoints and widely variant information on staying safe at Campvention. In this ever-changing world, the Trustees want you to know we are still concerned about the many variants that seem to be popping up as well as “hot spots” of disease and how we can keep our campers safe without coming on too strongly.

That being said, the article printed in the May covering meeting and social gatherings has been completely revamped. It has been replaced with kinder, gentler, but no less effective, health guidelines. So please take a look at our new FCRV Health Guidelines and stay safe out there!

FCRV HEALTH GUIDELINES – EFFECTIVE MARCH 1, 2022

These are simply guidelines and as such supplement—and do not replace—any state, provincial, local, territorial, or tribal health and safety laws, rules, and regulations that govern any meeting or social gathering.

We recommend campers and their guests are up to date with vaccinations and immunizations and carry this information on a medical card as well as showing all current medications, medical conditions, and allergies that emergency medical personnel may need to know.

Have a mask available to use for your protection and the protection of others as they can be used for more than deterring COVID.

Use common sense in protecting yourself and others.

Official CDC Guidelines change quickly so be aware of the local conditions and be prepared to adapt to them.

Vaccinated? No mask may be necessary.
Unvaccinated? Mask is recommended.

Event coordinators will announce if local conditions change, requiring adjustments to these statements.

2022 Teen Pageant Suspended

2022 Teen Pageant Suspended

The FCRV Trustees met on the evening of March 9, 2022, to make a difficult decision regarding the 2022 Campvention. After many, many attempts to find a new Teen Pageant Coordinator, no one has come forward. Having no one to organize the Teen Pageant at the Campvention, it was decided that our only option is to suspend the pageant for 2022. At the end of the 2022 Campvention, all current title holders will retire their crowns. This means that there will be no Teen King or Queen for 2022-2023. That does not mean there will be no teen activities. The Trustees understand and are aware of the deep disappointment this decision may cause but see no way a pageant could be put together at this late date without a Coordinator.

The Trustees have heard from many members that the pageant is no longer the spirited event that it used to be and have heard many comments that it has not kept up with the times. The Trustees have listened and understand your concerns. It is hoped that a new Pageant Coordinator will step up during this break will allow a better event to emerge and to be developed in the future.

For questions or comments, please contact your FCRV Recording/Corresponding Secretary, Beth Standiford @ fcrvsecretary@standiford.net

Thank you for your understanding in this matter.

Message From Teen Director Ms Beth

Hello FCRV Family (especially the Teens),

I am pleased to have accepted the position of National Teen Director for FCRV. I had considered this position after having a wonderful time running Teen Activities for the 2018 Campvention in Virginia, but the timing just wasn't right. Now that the "planets have aligned", I am looking forward to working with all the teens in FCRV to move our teen program into this millennia. I have lots of ideas to share at our National Teen meeting in Pueblo, CO, but I also want to hear from all of you. If you are coming to Colorado, please meet with other teens in your state/province/region and bring those ideas with you. If no one in your area is attending Campvention, please submit your ideas at fcrv.nationalteendirector@gmail.com. This program is here for you and should become a program you are interested in being a part of and proud to represent as members of FCRV.

I have been in touch with the Campvention Chair for Teen Activities and know there are lots of fun activities planned. We will also be using the funds earned at Family Fun Day to attend an off grounds event. Keep watch on Facebook to see some of the activities planned.

I look forward to hearing from you and/or seeing you at Campvention.

In camping friendship,
Ms. Beth

After The Crown Message from 2018 Teen Queen

After The Crown

Many people may wonder what happens to the past FCRV Teen Queens and Kings? What do they do after they pass on the crown to the new reigning royalty? Well, I am here to answer that for you.

I was Miss FCRV in 2018 and was crowned in West Virginia. I was extremely fortunate and blessed to have been the ambassador for FCRV during my reign. I traveled to many campouts and created a bond with many individuals across the nation. I also encouraged other teens and youth that they could be a part of the pageant as well. But encouraging others and promoting FCRV didn't stop after I relinquished my title. I am still an active camper and an active member of our organization. I am in my senior year of college at Ferris State University, finishing up my Bachelor degree. Even with my life moving forward on full speed, I have had the distinguished opportunity to give back to what shaped me, FCRV. I ran the pageant with my sister, who was Miss FCRV in 2016, this past year. We were able to provide an impactful opportunity to members who are where we were just a few years prior. As a young adult now, FCRV is still a prominent part of my life at the state and national level. The past kings and queens who have also walked this same path grew a love for camping, just like I did. They are distinguished members of society now and are raising families and encouraging others to join in the same opportunity that they had.

From the outside looking in, you may see glamorous ball gowns and sparkly crowns, but the National Teen Pageant surpasses all of those expectations by shaping young individuals like myself. The impact that our pageant has flows much further than any individual can see. No one needs a crown to be impacted through our organization, the opportunity alone changes people. I have been able to see countless individuals who started out shy and are now able to talk in front of a crowd of 200 people. I have seen young girls grow into strong woman and timid boys shape into gentleman. FCRV did that! Our membership did that! All through something that happens just once a year. The impact is endless, and so is the future.

With love,
Katie Kurburski

Update from the FRCV International Teen King 2021

Update from the FCRV International Teen King 2021

Fellow Campers,

I am so excited that the snow is starting to melt and I can finally see the hopes of camping this summer. I hope everyone is staying healthy during these times and as we are emerging out of COVID.

I am finishing up my junior year of high school at Petoskey High school. I am taking auto and application in computer science as my electives this semester. I am enjoying learning how to program and use equipment to 3-D print things as well as make computer games.

I recently have been touring colleges and programs in Michigan to find my career path. I have been looking at programs in the culinary industry as well as the welding and automotive industry.

During these winter months, I have been enjoying activities outside with my Boy Scout troop. I also have been focusing on my studies and during the mean time I am playing video games and spending time with friends.

Forever Grateful,
Luke Kurburski

National Award Nomination Notice

Who in your chapter, state, or region always puts in extra effort in support of our organization? Do you know someone deserving of a Humanitarian or Life-saving award? The individual (or couple) awards include the Plaque and Citation. We also recognize the "Chapter of the Year." The "Hank Nathan Lifetime Achievement Award" is available to a person or couple who have provided a lifetime of continuous service to FCRV.

Two things to keep in mind: anyone can recommend a fellow member for a national award, and nominations are due April 15. Forms and instructions for all awards can be found on our website, fcrv.org. Field Directors, State/Provincial Directors, Regional Directors, Program Directors and Trustees can submit a nomination for the various awards. Please help them out by letting them know about someone you think is deserving so they can nominate that person.

While honors are presented on stage at campvention, recipients of a national award are not required to be present. Therefore, if the person(s) you're thinking about is unable to travel to Canada this summer, please don't let that discourage you from submitting a nomination.

Nomination forms can be emailed to me (preferred method) and no signature is necessary as long as the form is from a recognized email address.

I truly hope you will strongly consider nominating some deserving members. Please contact me if you have any questions or need help getting started.

Thank you.

Beth Standiford, FCRV Recording & Corresponding Secretary fcrvsecretary@standiford.net

WELCOME TO CAMPVENTION IN COLORADO

by Jeff & Shirley Kendle, Campvention '22 Chairs

There is a saying here “If you don’t like the weather, wait 5 minutes.” Colorado can have various changes in the weather, even in July! That is why you should have clothing for any occasion! In addition to “layering” you should consider bringing the following:

- 1 Water & water bottle – You will need to drink plenty of water, stay hydrated as there is very little humidity and sometimes high temperatures.
- 2 Sunscreen, lip balm, hats – Colorado is known for its sunny weather; in fact, Pueblo is considered one of the sunniest cities in the U.S., enjoying around 259 days of sunshine per year. With that in mind, sunscreen is definitely one of the top Colorado packing essentials, no matter what time of year you visit.
- 3 Flashlights – For when it gets dark.
- 4 Mosquito repellent w/DEET – The good news is that Colorado’s relatively dry air and high elevation cut way down on insects. But being outside, especially during the summer, can still expose you to mosquitoes and plenty of other bugs. And if you happen to end up with a mosquito bite, make sure you have something to put on it to stop the itching.
- 5 Umbrellas/raingear – Colorado has a relatively dry climate, but it still gets some rainy days, especially in the spring and summer. It’s always smart to pack a lightweight and portable umbrella in case you get caught in the rain.
- 6 Easy cook meals – Bring meals that are easy to prepare so you can spend your time having fun.

7 Comfortable pair of walking shoes – There is a lot to see and do while in Colorado so make sure your feet are comfortable. We are happy you will be joining us. The 2022 Campvention Team are super excited to welcome everyone to the Region 1 Campvention and hope that you enjoy your time at the Colorado State Fairgrounds.

National Conservation Poster Contest

With the 2022 Campvention in Pueblo, Colorado fast approaching it is time to start working on your Conservation Poster.

Contestants must be members of FCRV who have won first place in a State/Provincial competition. Posters must be on standard size poster board (22” by 28”) and contain your Name, date of birth, chapter, and complete address and the Field Director’s certification on the lower left-hand corner of the back of the poster. The poster must be the contestant’s own work and must have been created for the FCRV contest only.

Age is determined as of July 1, 2022, for this year’s Campvention. Age categories are:

Up to 5 years, 6 – 8 years, 9 – 11 years, 12 – 14 years, 15 – 19 years, 20-year-old and up.

For further information regarding the rules and guidelines for the ‘National Conservation Poster’ contest, please refer to the FCRV Field Manual.

Upon arriving at the 2022 Campvention, all ‘Conservation’ posters are to be turned into the Youth Directors during the youth registration in the Cultural Arts Building.

We look forward to seeing everyone’s submission this year at the 2022 Campvention in Pueblo, Colorado

SEMINARS, SEMINARS AND MORE SEMINARS

If you weren't sure about attending Campvention, hopefully, this article about all the planned seminars will make you decide to send in that reservation right away! There are several times when you will have a choice of which seminar to participate. Here's some teasers so you can start planning:

Health & Safety – The City and County of Pueblo will be joining us for several safety topics including RV Fire Safety, First Aid, and Emergency Preparedness. They plan to bring their equipment, K-9s and drones to demonstrate how they are using modern technology to keep the public safe. You'll have two chances to learn how to line dance in preparation for Tuesday's evening entertainment (and earn those CAMP dollars.) Learn how CBD can improve your quality of life for those of us dealing with daily aches and pains or anyone who overexerted themselves dancing the night before!

Food – We have three sessions scheduled so far covering the unique foods Pueblo has to offer, cast iron and Dutch oven cooking. It's my understanding samples of the cooked food will be available for attendees to taste.

Quilting – We have three 60-to-90-minute seminars scheduled throughout the week that cover basics, sewing machines and equipment, supplies, hooping,

Current issues – We're fortunate to have a local astronomer discuss newly released information on extra-terrestrials. Join a celebrated author to learn how the pioneers lived while we celebrate the 200th anniversary of the Santa Fe Trail. Check out the cool cars from Art Cartopia (<https://www.artcartopia.com/>) and learn how this organization helps underserved members of the Trinidad community. Join President, Gerry Pfirsch as he shares his skills at bee keeping and why bees are so important.

RV Lifestyle – We all struggle to stay connected while traveling in our RV. Join KING as they share ways to improve your connectivity. RV101 will share helpful advice and troubleshooting tips for tires, batteries, electrical issues and more. Join the Lippert Ambassadors as they share their insights on RVing, using key Lippert products, and living on the road full time.

As you can see, we have a very full agenda, but don't worry, we've saved plenty of time for family fun and the usual Campvention activities. If you have a suggested seminar, feel free to email me at bddtt@outlook.com.

Everyone We are Having a Parade

We are looking toward seeing you in Pueblo, Colorado for Campvention! And on Friday we are going to have a parade a good old-fashioned parade, I tell you! So, bring your things and plan to decorate a float, strike up the marching band, and let's have some fun. I would like to have the States & Provinces show their pride with a float, or a walking float that shows why you are the best state/province in the FCRV Family. The Parade route is set, and we are ready to have some fun; the question would be are you ready to have some fun. There will be awards for the winning floats. Some of them will be:

Trustees Award

President's Award

Parade Steeler

Best Walking

Best Motorized

To name a few.

So, let's show our spirit and make this a parade to remember at Campventions to come. Who will win? Possibly you; all you must do is make your plan for a winning float, and we will have places that are covered to allow you to build your float under roof. So, I say again, put on your thinking cap and devise a winning plan for that Winning Float.

The Continental Divide of the Americas

by Barb Turner, Campvention '22 PR Chair

The Continental Divide of the Americas or commonly just called the Continental Divide extends from the Bering Strait in the north to the Strait of Magellan at the southern tip of South America. The Continental Divide separates the watersheds that drain into the Pacific Ocean to the west and the Atlantic Ocean to the east.

Attendees of Campvention 2022 in Pueblo, Colorado in July might enjoy exploring the Continental Divide in Colorado. View this video which explains the Continental Divide and explains its importance: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=kMhrvvoYSHo>

Experience sections of the Continental Divide by hiking or driving. Do your research. Determine what best meets your interests. The following links and many others you'll find in your research may be helpful to you:

Explore the mountains, but use caution. Trying to adjust to the increased elevation gradually is important to those of us who live at lower elevations. Altitude sickness is real and is to be taken seriously. Altitude sickness typically kicks in at elevations around 7,500 to 8,000 feet. (Pueblo's elevation is just under 4700' above sea level.) To we lowland travelers who are new to the area, altitude can produce some unusual high-altitude effects such as dizziness, nausea and headaches. Colorado Springs climbs to an altitude of 6,035 feet. Personally, I first traveled to Colorado and the mountains in 1976. We have made many trips to the Rocky Mountains over the years. I never had a problem, even up at the summit of Trail Ridge Road in Rocky Mountain National Park and the top of Pike's Peak until 2019. I experienced the nausea, dizziness, and basic unsteadiness for the first time, particularly when we visited the open-pit mine which was above 10,000'. Looking ahead to going to the Colorado Springs area after Campvention brings caution as to where I'll feel comfortable. Exploring the Colorado Rockies & the Continental Divide is wonderful; just be careful

We look forward to seeing you in Pueblo, Colorado in July for Campvention 2022!

In March, several members of the Winter Texan chapter visited the Gelman Stained Glass Museum in San Juan, TX. The amazingly beautiful museum, housed in a restored church building contains a collection of hundreds of stained glass windows from churches no longer in use around the world. Of course the tour was followed by lunch.

“Wild Goose Chase”

“Wild Goose Chase”

Adventures in the Field: Stories from a Wildlife Technician by Amy Wittmeyer

While I was working as a wildlife crew leader at the Adirondack Ecological Center (AEC) in summer 2019, I participated in several fun activities outside normal work hours. One such activity included traveling north to the Wilson Hill Wildlife Management Area (WMA) in Massena, NY, to participate in a state goose drive. During the drive, dozens of volunteers would go out on the water in canoes and kayaks while state biologists used motor boats to drive in groups of geese off the St. Lawrence River into a small bay, where the volunteers would corral the geese and shepherd them out of the water and into a pen on land. The geese were unable to fly during this time, as they were all molting their flight feathers; otherwise, this would have been an impossible task! This drive is done annually to help state officials monitor the goose population.

My crew and the timber crew from the AEC traveled together up to the WMA with three canoes in our trucks on Friday afternoon after work. We spent the night camping with some state officials and a large group of volunteers, having a cookout and playing yard games. The next morning, we all got up, had a quick breakfast, and drove over to the boat launch. State officials had megaphones and instructions on how we were to corral the geese, forming a large circle in the water that we would slowly shrink to force the geese up on shore into the pen. Once in the pen, the babies were caught in nets and separated to a waiting pen for their own safety, so they wouldn't get trampled by the anxious adults. Then the state officials entered the adult pen, grabbing geese one at a time and handing them off to volunteers to bring over to other biologists to identify the sex, give them a leg band, and release them back into the water. When several adults were ready to go back in at once, the pen for the babies was lifted and the babies were released with the adults so they wouldn't get lost.

If you have never held an ornery goose, it is hard to comprehend how incredibly strong they are. We were instructed to hold the geese at the base of their wings and out in front of us, to minimize their ability to reach us to bite and scratch. Despite our best efforts, most volunteers still left that day covered in scratches and bruises. The geese would also flap their restricted wings mightily, fighting us as best they could to try to get away. My wrists were sore for several days after because of how much strength it took to hold the goose as it flapped. It was a very fun day, with biologists estimating they banded over 300 adult geese. Once we were done, my crew piled back into our trucks, stopped at a Chinese buffet for an early dinner, and headed back south to the AEC.

Dear RV

Hi there everyone, we are introducing a new article in Camping Today. We would like to welcome you to Dear RV. This is a place where you can ask the questions that you are hesitant to ask members of your Chapter, State, or your Neighbor. Your questions will be answered from our point of view, and it will hopefully give you a chuckle as well as some useful information to help you in your RVing experience. You may not agree completely with all our answers, but our goal is to give honest information to you as to how we do our RVing. We would prefer to not know who is submitting the question. So, send us your questions and we will send you an answer (possibly that you were not expecting) but an answer, just the same and possibly with a small dose of humor for good measure.

Us here at Dear RV!

Dear RV,

We love camping but when moving from place to place, everything in the cabinets seems to be jostled all over! Nothing is where I left it. Help!

Signed, Disheveled

Dear Disheveled

I feel your pain. I think I should have the BT-DT (Been there – done that) tee shirt. I highly recommend a quick trip to your local $ store. Be prepared with knowing the length, depth and width of your shelves in the cupboards and buy those little baskets. One for dental supplies, one for deodorants and makeup, one for pills and OTC medications, and so on. Get some double-stick Velcro and put them in their places! Voila! No more wondering where your toothbrush went or having it fall out into the commode when you open the cabinet. Thanks for writing to Dear RV.

Dear RV

I am new to camping. My I have a question that I am afraid to ask the people that I camp with. It has to do with starting a fire in the fire ring at the campground. On our campouts it is the person that is Host that is to start the campfire and to be honest I just do not know how to do it correctly. Some of the members make it look so easy that I am just embarrassed to ask how to start a fire in the evening. Thanks for your help No Smoke in New York!

Dear Smoke

I have a different take on building a campfire. I will start with a split piece of wood chop up some kindling add some dry paper Birch or possibly some dry pine needles to start my fire. Some strips newspaper or crumpled newspaper also works. I feel that the key is some fine thin pieces of split wood will help you get a fire started. I think the key to success is start with some small fine pieces of split wood and build up to larger pieces as you have a small fire started. Make a game out of it try to start your fire with a single match. You will improve and gain confidence as you try. Thanks for writing to Dear RV

Dear RV

Our new puppy tore through the screen door. What can I do to keep this from happening again? How do others have such calm dogs and mine is all over the place! And she barks whenever we leave the camper. We didn't get a dog to be tied down and we can't take her sightseeing. Dog Tired in Ohio

Dear Dog Tired,

Having a furry camping companion can sometimes really enhance your camping experience. Other times, not so much. You mention they are still a puppy and while you don't mention the size or breed, and I know even a small dog can wreak havoc on a camper and a trip. First, fix the screen. (Keep those bugs out!) A couple of options are:

1. Pet screen (available at most big hardware stores).
2. Consider replacing the screen with a clear plastic product that can be cut to size.

3. Crate your puppy when you leave the camper. Crating should never be a punishment for your pet, but rather just a normal part of their routine in keeping them safe.

A dog that constantly barks when you are not at the campsite can be a real annoyance to other campers. This one will require time and training on your part. Some people swear by leaving the TV on. Others use a radio, and some even use a video camera so they can talk to their pet. Like a child not getting what they want by whining, your dog must learn (by positive reinforcement) that barking doesn't bring you back. Leave them in the camper and return a few seconds later and praise them for being quiet. Over time, leave them for progressively longer periods of time. And always be certain they are getting plenty of exercise and toys to keep them occupied. Thanks for writing to Dear RV.

Dear RV

Our question is how do you have a successful camping experience with the relentless onslaught of biting bugs, snakes in shoes, spiders in water heater and 'fridge propane tubes? There is also the challenge of finding a place to camp. How do you successfully do this year after year? Confused and Bewildered in

Dear Confused & Bewildered,

It is a challenge to have a good camping experience at time. Bugs, spiders and yes snakes are a part of that experience. Camping is truly all of that and more. So much more. You should know your area as to what kind of pests it's known to have. Yes, you're going to need really good bug spray. I myself have donated blood to more mosquitos and other insects than the Red Cross could ever hope to get. I have a can of bug spray at the step of my camper and never venture further without spritzing some on every time. Snakes love those ready-made apartments we call shoes. They are warm, which is what they want. Pop them into a plastic bag and tie them up, out of the slithering path. Easy for you to get to, but not so much so for them, but check anyway.

Year after year we plan ahead for our campsites. Sometimes we make reservations a year in advance. It seems many state parks require reservations made 6 months in advance. With the record sales of campers in the last few years, the campgrounds, both public and private, not being able to expand, is putting sites at a premium. Have you tried Boon Docking? Most campers can go a weekend without hookups and it's a great way to sharpen your camping skills.

I guess it's just like anything else; if you like it, you will find a way to make it happen. Thanks for writing to Dear RV.

Boating Safety

Boating Safety

By Joe Boswell, National DASAT Direct

Ok, you have arrived at your campsite, set up camp and now what are you going to do for the rest of your time. In your adventures wondering around the campground and or the local area, you have decided to go for a boat ride. Great! Some of you might have brought your own boat along for adventure.

Now, before you board that boat learn the safety rules for boating. No matter how large or small your boat may be, you need to be prepared. Here are some very basics that everyone needs to know before you put that boat, kayak, or canoe in the water. Just keep in mind the larger the boat, the larger the list of safety equipment required to be on your vessel. Take time to consult with the Coast Guard in your local areas to make sure you meet or exceed the safety requirements.

Let us review some of the safety equipment. You will need personal floatation devices: commonly referred to as life jackets or life preservers for every person who boards your boat. Going out in a rowboat, kayak or canoe, you may want to take along an extra set of oars so if you lose one you have extras to help you get back to shore. In some areas, a helmet is necessary if you are out in a Kayak, and or maybe a canoe-this protects your head if you happened to flip over, especially in rocky shallow water.

A floating safety rescue ring attached to a long rope is needed and or a sling for those who have larger boats. This way you can throw this line to someone who is in the water and needs some assistance. Rope of various lengths is essential, because you need it to tie up you boat so it will not float away. The rope can be a useful item to help pull someone out of the water who has fallen in. Rope can also help to secure things within your boat, so they do not move as you move about in the water. Larger boats need a VHF radio to contact the Coast Guard if additional assistance is necessary.

An AM/FM radio for pleasure listening with the weather radio alerts is a basic essential and always helpful to have on your boat. It is important that you take the time to register your boat with the authorities, this way they can identify the boat and locate possible owners if the boat is stolen or found adrift in the water without you or its' passengers. If your boat has a motor of any capacity, then a fire extinguisher is a necessary item to have on board the vessel. Signal flares should be stored in a waterproof container and available when needed in an emergency. They can signal your location to receive help with a water rescue. Some type of noisemaker is beneficial so have a whistle or horn on board within easy reach. Lights, the bigger the boat the more you need, so make sure your lights are in working order. If your boat, for example is a rowboat, a flashlight will work for this purpose.

Store in a dry place, maps of your local boating area and learn the buoy markings for safe boating. As with driving a car, learn the buoy signs so you do not end up in a dangerous place or put others at risk during your boating adventure. In a few instances, you may find it necessary to have a small assortment of tools on board your vessel. They are always useful if you need to make a repair while boating.

Now that you have reviewed your list of safety equipment, you are ready to go, hold on a minute. Do you know where you are going? Before you depart in that boat is it best to check the weather conditions as it can change at a moment notice. Review your charts and note the hazards that may exist in your boating area. Give a responsible person who is staying on land, your scheduled departure and arrival time back at the dock, so they know if you do not return within a reasonable period to start rescue efforts. This is a good safety measures, so others are aware that you are on the water. Water conditions can change at a moment's notice, or you could experience a medical emergency, or experience boat problems-a leak for example. If someone is keeping watch and expecting you back at a certain time and you do not return, they can notify authorities for assistance in attempting to locate you. Did you pack that first aid kit; remember you may have gone fishing; now you have stabbed yourself with that fishing hook. Ouch, now your first aid kit has become very useful.

It is always a good idea if you are going to be on the water for several hours to take along some snacks, and fresh water to drink. Remember that alcohol does not belong on a boat, as it will inhibit you from making good quality decisions. Suntan lotion is necessary for bright sunny days to protect your skin. All of these things mentioned above are important for safe boating. This is just a simple overview. If you own a boat, consider taking the Coast Guards safety boating classes and get your boat inspected so that it meets or exceed all safety regulations for your given geographical area. If in doubt, contact the local Coast Guard authorities and they will help you become an experience boater in no time. The more you know about safe boating the safer you will be on the water. Safe boating everyone.

Booklist (starred review)

For centuries, we have known that getting outside is good for us. Yet we have become increasingly disconnected from the earth that nourishes us, with most of us spending 87% of our days indoors. In response, in RETURN TO NATURE: The New Science of How Natural Landscapes Restore Us (HarperOne; on-sale: 4/12/22), writer and environmentalist Emma Loewe demonstrates the power of nature’s healing properties. Divided into eight chapters, each focused on a particular landscape, the book shares research-backed ways to explore nature and protect it in the future so that it can be healthy and nurturing for generations to come.

RETURN TO NATURE provides:

- A rich understanding of why spending time in nature is essential for mental health

- Dozens of ideas on how to combat stress, anxiety, and burnout outdoors
- Knowledge of the unique health benefits that lie in eight landscapes (grasslands, coasts, mountains, forests, ice and snow, rivers, deserts, cities)
- A list of journaling questions to help readers reflect on what nature means to them
- Mindful meditation exercises for connecting to nature through the 5 senses
- Science-backed techniques for restoring the mind in as little as 5 minutes
- Science-backed techniques for restoring the mind in as little as 5 minutes
- Interviews with researchers, extreme outdoor athletes, and Indigenous wisdom teachers on what nature can teach us
- Tips for crafting nature-inspired homes and inviting the benefits of the outdoors in
- 20+ mindset shifts that will change the way readers think about the climate crisis
- An array of meaningful actions readers can take to conserve the landscapes they care about most
- A renewed optimism about how we can solve the climate crisis by acting from a place of love, not fear

Alongside beautiful four-color illustrations that inspire us all to get outside in big and small ways, this stunning book—more urgent than ever—is perfect for anyone looking to connect with the world around them, whether in their neighborhood park or on a backpacking getaway.

DrySee® Waterproof Bandage

DrySee® Launches Patented Waterproof Bandage with Wetness Indicator

Proprietary liquid indicating gauze changes color if liquid breaches and new bandage is needed

DrySee®, a medical technology company dedicated to improving wound care, introduces its patented waterproof bandage with liquid intrusion alert. The average bandage provides some protection, but it is still easy for dirt and water to reach a wound. Even if a waterproof bandage is used on a wound it's hard to tell if it is actually sealed. DrySee is an alternative to traditional cloth or plastic bandages when more reliable wound protection and water blockage is needed.

DrySee's waterproof bandages provide a secure, waterproof covering for low exudate wounds. If water or other liquids make their way into the bandage, the liquid indicating gauze along the perimeter of the bandage will turn a dark, blue color. Fluid from the wound site will cause the internal pad to also change color, alerting the user that a bandage change is necessary. DrySee's color changing, liquid intrusion alert takes the guesswork out of replacing bandages because it is easy to see if the bandage is wet or dry. DrySee bandages can last for up to 3 days, so people may even be able to reduce the number of bandage changes that they need to complete during healing.

“Infections are a historical and ongoing plague on the health care system,” said Brad Greer, CEO of DrySee. “DrySee is a game-changer for any type of wound care. There is no more ambiguity on the part of the person caring for the wound. It is visibly obvious when a bandage needs to be changed. This visual cue should help people be more proactive with their wound care and help reduce the number of infections.”

DrySee bandages are available in packages of 25 for online purchase. DrySee liquid indicating bandages are waterproof, sterile, disposable, breathable, non-latex, and one bandage can be used for up to three days. For more information and ordering, visit www.drysee.com.

About DrySee

DrySee's mission is to provide bandage solutions that allow patients to live their lives confidently after surgery. The DrySee team saw a need in the medical industry for a more secure and effective dressing to ensure better post-op healing and created a revolutionary waterproof dressing that changes color to indicate if the bandage has been compromised.

The cutting-edge, patented DrySee technology helps to lower both staff and material costs while improving patient compliance and experience.

YARS CHAPTER CELEBRATES 20 YEARS

It's hard to believe that an idea discussed around a campfire more than 20 years ago would catch on and thrive and become an integral part of FCRV Retiree Rallies and Campventions. The original idea was to offer a campout following the rallies to just relax and unwind. Look for a more detailed article in C.T. later. YARS stands for Young thinking Active Retirees. Since the name sounds like something a pirate would say, we chose the pirate as our mascot and 'uniform.' Many members have come and gone over the years leaving behind memories of fun and friendship. Look for a more detailed history later in Camping Today.
